

SOCIETY

PALOS VERDES PENINSULA NEWS THURSDAY, MAY 19, 2011

Photo courtesy of the Palos Verdes Peninsula Land Conservancy

Guests of The 2011 Edge of LA International Wine Festival enjoyed sampling the more than 100 wines at the event using their commemorative glasses.

Wine festival raises PVPLC funds

The 2011 Edge of LA International Wine Festival on April 30 was attended by 250 guests who enjoyed sampling more than 100 wines, including award-winners Tobin James, Stolpman and Tolosa along with delicious hors d'oeuvres at Michael's Tuscany Room.

The event was held to benefit the Palos Verdes Peninsula Land Conservancy. At the festival, Ron Sandvig, vice president of sales at Terranea Resort, selected the winner of a special opportunity drawing for a two-night stay at a Terranea oceanview villa that included golf for four. The opportunity drawing raised more than $10,000 for the event.

"Terranea is pleased to support the important cause of protecting the Peninsula's open space and coastal habitat. The event was a huge success and everyone involved should be very proud," he told the crowd.

"Terranea is pleased to support the important cause of protecting the Peninsula's open space and coastal habitat."

— Ron Sandvig, vice president of sales at Terranea Resort